

» Edge: Peer Mentoring Program

Edge is a peer mentoring program designed to support incoming students—both freshmen and transfers—during their first year at Georgia Tech. Incoming students are paired with a successful upperclassman, or “Edge Leader,” who will serve as a peer mentor and offer support to help new students acclimate academically and socially during their first year.

Offered by OMED: Educational Services, the Edge program strives to help students develop and refine strategies for a successful college experience. In addition to networking with experienced Georgia Tech students, Edge participants will have the chance to:

- » Set goals and strategies to get the most out of their college experience.
- » Learn about available resources on campus.
- » Participate in study sessions, study groups, and academic workshops.
- » Discover scholarship workshops and job opportunities.
- » Discuss study abroad, research, internship, and co-op opportunities.
- » Receive peer and staff advice and mentorship.
